OPINION AND COMMENT

Building Program Adopted

Meeting with the Executive Committee in Chapel Hill on April 19, the Building Committee of the University laid out a program of construction for the biennium covering nineteen undertakings and calling for the expenditure of the $1,650,000 provided by the recent legislature.

Among the more notable provisions which alumni will heartily approve, are: $400,000 for a new chemical laboratory, $100,000 for a woman's dormitory; $90,000 for the extension of athletic grounds and the erection of a building to take care of indoor athletics; $375,000 for three new dormitories; $125,000 for renovating the old dormitories, and amounts sufficient to insure the development of a new water supply and the extension of the sewer system.

Altogether, the program is a most admirable one, and, now that it has been adopted, it becomes the privilege of the University to see that it is carried out in a way that will add to the efficiency and permanent attractiveness of the campus.

Who Are Responsible for Alumni Leadership?

On another page appears a directory of the officers and committees of the General Alumni Association, class secretaries, and officers of local associations.

THE REVIEW publishes the list for a very definite purpose. It wishes to bring home to the officers the fact that they, just as the Trustees, or Faculty, or student body, represent a fourth member of the University of North Carolina—the big member, in fact, in keeping the University before the public and assisting it in securing the sort of support necessary for it to do the great work which it should in the State and nation. It also wishes to let the alumni as a whole know who its leaders are and who are responsible for the success or failure of the alumni program.

The Central Office Does Its Part

With this done, THE REVIEW wishes to say something about the work of the central office of the General Association. Secretary Grant took the duties of the office over in the fall of 1922. Since then something for the good of the Association has been done every moment. It may not be apparent to the alumni as a group, but the fundamental work of establishing an office, of securing the proper addresses of alumni, of perfecting a mailing room equipment, of visiting alumni groups in different sections of the country, and of devising ways and means of putting ginger into the alumni organization—this necessary work has been pushed with the finest sort of results.

With this accomplished, or being accomplished, the time has come for the alumni to catch their stride in making the University a great, outstanding institution.

The Door of Opportunity Swings Wide

The University of North Carolina has the opportunity of becoming one of the great institutions of the nation. It has a notable history for a century and a quarter. Its faculty numbers well up toward 200 and contains many men of the highest scholarly attainment. Its record for scholarly investigation is unsurpassed by that of any institution in the South. Its library now numbers 115,000 volumes and adds more than 10,000 volumes annually. Its journals, such as The Journal of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, Studies in Philology, and The Journal of Social Forces, to mention only three of the nine it publishes, are held in highest esteem throughout the scholarly world.

Again, we say, there is a program for the alumni here commensurate with that of Yale, or Princeton, or Michigan, or California. It is not concerned merely with athletics, or increasing the number of students, or assisting in increasing its appropriations, essential as these may be. But it does call for the most careful sort of study of the part alumni should play in building the greater University and in interpreting it to the people—a task of mammoth proportions, tremendously worth the doing, and, as yet, scarcely conceived of, much less begun!

THE REVIEW doesn't know just what program the officers of the Association will present at the approaching meeting on Alumni Day. It is inevitable that The Graham Memorial Building, The Alumni Loyalty Fund, Carolina Inn, and various other splendid undertakings will be up for consideration. But along with them there should go the consideration of this fact which we have touched on in the barest outline—this fact that the door of opportunity swings wide of making this the great University of the South, and that it is the privilege of this alumni group to start to do it now!

Floridians Set an Example

Secretary Grant has recently returned from a most enthusiastic meeting of Carolina alumni in Florida. The activities of the alumni group in that state so impressed him that he sent THE REVIEW the following comment concerning it:

The Central Office finds in the aggressive assistance rendered by University alumni in Florida a model sort of attitude and contribution. It answers permanently the argument of the "doubting Thomas" that "we're too far away," or "we're too scattered," or "we're too busy." Of course these are not arguments, but mere excuses to cover indifference or waning interest.

The University has slightly over 100 alumni in the entire state, of whom only about 60 could, until recently, be reached with recorded addresses. Florida, let it be remembered, is not a compact state, and these 100-plus alumni are scattered from Pensacola to Jacksonville to Key West. Jacksonville has the largest number of any one city, claiming about fifteen.

These handicaps were no deterrent for the unflagging enthusiasm of the men who took up the work, and after much planning a well-attended meeting was held at the Seminole Hotel in Jacksonville on the evening of March 10 and the Florida Alumni Association was formed.

Now the University has an outpost in the state of Florida that is jealously guarding its interests and working to increase its prestige. At least two meetings are to be held each year, and although all the members cannot be expected to attend on account of the wide distances, everyone in the state has a direct connective through his association with Chapel Hill, and a constant stimulus for his interest.

The Florida group is now diligently searching the state for those who have been lost, is sending to each member a complete account of the activities of the association, is devising ways of assisting in the gathering of material for the forthcoming alumni catalogue, is urging every alumnus to become a subscriber to THE REVIEW, and is doing numerous other things to help the immediate inauguration of the alumni work.

Those directly responsible for the work in Florida are: H. Plant Osborne, president; Wm. A. Schell, secretary; and Frank W. Norris, treasurer. There are others who have assisted actively, and all have supported heartily.

A Job for You

THE REVIEW is in receipt from Secretary Grant of a list of alumni—some 2,000 of them—concerning whom he wishes information. The list has also gone to a number of alumni who are in a position to assist in furnishing the information, with the request that they help to the limit in reducing the list of those of whom the University has lost track.

Here is a job that will take an hour or two. However, it is extremely important and if you will do it you may rest assured your services will be genuinely worth while. Furthermore, if your experience is like ours, you will find as you run down the list a name here, a suggestion there that will evoke memories of the days when you were a care-free student here beneath the oaks, which, of itself, will be a most happy reward.

The Alumni Loyalty Fund

The attention of alumni is directed to the advertisement of the Alumni Loyalty Fund appearing in this issue. Established in 1916, this fund has steadily grown, until it amounts at present to $13,878.24, not to mention the amounts which have been set aside in its favor in the form of life insurance policies carried by classes and individuals, and provisions written in various wills.

At the coming commencement it is proposed to incorporate the fund in order that it may lend itself more easily to the uses to which it should be put. With that done, like the fund at Yale, which yields approximately $500,000 annually, it can be made the ideal means through which individuals and classes can further the work of the University. THE REVIEW commends it most heartily to every one who would have a part in the enrichment of the University life, and particularly to the reunion classes who wish to place their contributions to the University where they will count most.

High School Week

High School Week, culminating in the victories of the Elizabeth City debating team over that of the Wilson high school, and of the Charlotte and Goldsboro track and tennis teams over all competitors, brought to the campus for entertainment by the University community 240 debaters, 220 participants in the various athletic events, and teachers and other representatives of the schools to the total number of 600.

The week, despite the showers of the second day, was a distinct success. The second decade in the life of the High School Debating Union was inaugurated by the offering of a new Aycock Memorial Cup, and the 600 pupils and teachers came in contact with the University at work—a wonderfully inspiring thing in itself, which is far too seldom done by busy alumni, much less by citizens of the State at large.

THE REVIEW has commented in previous years on the significance of these contests. There is not anything it cares to add to its previous comment other than this. We are convinced that hundreds of North Carolina boys and girls have been held in the high schools by the interest aroused by these contests; other hundreds have discovered through these eleven annual pilgrimages to the University that there is something beyond high school worthy of their highest ambition; and all who have followed through the procedure culminating in the finals here on the campus have developed an ability to evaluate materials and to correlate physical and mental powers in a way that will add to their effectiveness as citizens in the days to come. High School Week is, in reality, an educational institution of the most genuine value and merits the finest sort of support by the University.

ALUMNI SECRETARIES CONFERENCE IN CHAPEL HILL IN 1925

It is more than probable that the annual Conference of Alumni and Alumnae Secretaries from all over America will be held in Chapel Hill in 1925. The last Conference was held at Cleveland, Ohio, from April 12 to 14. Secretary Grant attended the Conference and invited it to Chapel Hill. Those in attendance were anxious to come to North Carolina and when Carolina Inn is completed and in smooth running order the invitation will be heartily accepted.

Ralph M. Harper, '04, formerly a member of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., is now rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Winthrop, Massachusetts.

TRUSTEES ADOPT BUILDING PROGRAM

The Executive Committee of the University's Board of Trustees met in Chapel Hill in the middle of April, and, after having received and examined the recommendations of the Committee on Buildings, announced the following apportionment of the fund of $1,650,000 voted by the last legislature. The total of the items in the list comes to $1,637,700—leaving $12,300 not yet scheduled.

Schedule of Allotments:

Permanent water supply.....	$ 120,000
Women's building.....	100,000
Chemistry building.....	400,000
Remodelling old buildings.....	125,000
Men's dormitories.....	375,000
Roads and grading.....	50,000
Permanent departmental equipment.....	75,000
Sewers, heating, lighting extensions.....	115,000
Exercise and recreation grounds.....	50,000
Furniture and fixtures.....	45,000
Storage and repair shops.....	10,000
Infirmary addition.....	20,000
Library addition.....	25,000
Physical training building.....	40,000
Gymnasium repairs.....	3,000
Biology basement floor.....	12,000
Extra finish, law building.....	7,700
Railway and equipment.....	65,000
Total.....	$1,637,700

Of course this program will not be adhered to with absolute rigidity—there are obliged to be modifications, from time to time, as construction proceeds. But there will probably be no important deviations from the present expansion plan.

$100,000 for Women's Building

The question of the women's building naturally has occupied a prominent place in discussion of the program, since the excited arguments of a few weeks ago. The appropriation of $100,000 is less than was once proposed, but it seems to promise satisfactory accommodations—for the next two or three years, anyhow—for as many women as cannot be comfortably housed in the town.

Instead of going up in the grove in front of the Battle place, the women's building will be placed on the University property between the Episcopal church and the Raleigh road, where the late Eben Alexander used to live, and after him the late C. W. Bain, and then J. B. Bullitt. Wallace E. Caldwell is occupying the house now.

Old Dormitories to be Renovated

In their recent consultations, the committees of the Trustees made the effort to arrive at a balanced scheme of building. That is, not to spend all the available money on new structures at the expense of the old ones or at the expense of necessary equipment. To make the old buildings sanitary and habitable, $125,000 will be spent. It is not possible to change them into modern fireproof dormitories, but they will be thoroughly renovated and made clean and livable.

New Roads to be Developed

An important decision of the Trustees is to proceed at once with certain roads. One will leave the Chapel Hill-Pittsboro-Pinehurst highway a little way south of the campus and run eastward, following the natural contour of the ground, to emerge on the Raleigh road this side of the cemetery between Emerson Field and the new class athletic field. Another—construction of which is now under way—will extend along Cameron avenue eastward to meet the Raleigh road beyond the cemetery. A third will leave this Cameron avenue extension near the corner of the Battle place, run along the south edge of that property, curve northward to meet the road by the Bradshaw and Hibbard homes, and come out on the main street of the town between the Lawson and Kennette homes.

Unorganized Athletics Promoted

The physical training building is designed to promote not organized athletics but recreation for the student body as a whole. It will be of frame and will be in the woods south of the campus. The University is not spending a penny on organized athletics. This activity has to be taken care of, independently, by the Athletic Association.

The chemistry building is to be to the south of the power house, in what is now the woods. The laboratory part of it is to be one-story high, with overhead lighting; eventually this will be surrounded by the sections of the structure devoted to recitation rooms.

POPULAR QUARTETTE TO RETURN

Features for the coming commencement are not wanting. On Monday the "Wonder Team" of 1903 will cross bats with the faculty. On Tuesday there will be the Virginia-Carolina baseball game—the closing one of the series.

Now enters the famous University quartette that dates back to the early years of the century—the one that did lots of singing and popularized "Hail Carolina"—Woollen, Gallaway, Mangum, and Ehringhaus.

Tradition has it that the first verse and the chorus of this song had already been written, but it wasn't sufficiently long to give the singers a chance to show their "wares." It was ordered at one practice that each member was to submit a stanza at the next meeting. This was done and Mangum's and Woollen's stanzas were accepted. (Neither Ehringhaus nor Gallaway supplied this information!) Mangum is credited with the romantic verse which begins "Neath the Oaks" while Woollen is charged with being responsible for the more solemn strain "Though the Storms of Life Assail."

Since the end of their joint singing J. C. B. Ehringhaus has been practicing law in Elizabeth City, and was for a long time State solicitor; Charles S. Mangum has taught Anatomy in the University Medical School and helped guide Carolina athletics; Gaston G. Gallaway is in the real estate business in Charlotte; and Charles T. Woollen has been with the University, serving as Registrar, Graduate Manager of Athletics, Business Manager, and in various other capacities.

The singing of the quartette is to be one of the features of the Alumni Luncheon at Swain Hall on Alumni Day.

Rev. F. M. Osborne, '99, a member of the theological faculty of the University of the South, has recently been elected Chaplain of that institution.

HEARD AND SEEN AROUND THE WELL

The arboretum is painted with the glory of spring and perfumed by her garments. The crack of the bat smacks noisily against the sides of the Medical building and drifts gently into the shady depths of Battle's park. The campus politician runs back and forth around the Well herding together his cohorts of freshman and sophomore votes. Next week the president of the student body will be elected, also editors, managers, and class officers. Then the Golden Fleece will tap, Phi Beta Kappa will initiate, examinations will begin and nothing more will be heard or seen around the Well.

Politicians Run True to Form

Politicians run true to form. A week ago President Harmon announced that on the following Monday in Chapel the nominations for next year's president would be held. On the appointed day two men were nominated from the rising junior class. Then some wily one moved that the "constitution" be amended so that others would be eligible. "Mule" Shirley, as president pro tem, said he did not know what to do, that this was not his job anyhow. Now the whole job has to be done over after the amendment has been put to ballot. Gentlemen of 1921 and 1922, does this sound familiar? But I really believe that some progress is apparent. The denunciations have become less violent and there is much more good humor. One is less reminded of Mexico.

Putting the presidency of the campus on the ballot of the whole student body has increased by so much the political tension of this season. In fact the campus seems to move as a political unit to a surprising extent. From the various rumors one collects it can be gathered that the editorial offices, about ten in number, the class officers, about twelve, the athletic association jobs, about five, the presidency of the student body, and the literary society presidencies, these offices, about thirty in number, are lumped together and divided by trading between various political factions. For example, the president of the Di society may be really chosen by men who are not even members of the society.

Easter Dances a Success

The Easter dances were a success. Of course they were not perfect. The music was not completely satisfactory. There were almost as many girls as boys present the first evening. This, coupled with the disuse of the dance program, made the situation a little embarrassing to boys and girls alike. The house parties at the S. A. E. and Sigma Chi houses relieved the congestion at the boarding houses. The rule prohibiting "late dates" which was worked out by the dance leaders, the boarding house chaperones, and the University, was received with remarkably little objection and was fairly well observed. The girls were more beautiful than usual and their clothes were absolutely satisfactory to the most artistic and most-exacting chaperone present. The dancing was conspicuous by the absence of the extreme. For the first time in years no one was heard to say "Look at the way that girl is dancing." The conduct of the men present was all that could be desired. Of course the perennial alumnus bacchanalianus bloomed. However, through the activity of the danee leaders this crop was nipped in the bud. John Bonner, treasurer of the German club, took the joy out of life the last night by asking the alumni present to come back to the door and give a free-will offering. It seems that the German club was about to come out in the hole. About fifty dollars was collected in this manner, indicating the presence of about twenty-five alumni. The danee show decided evidence of return to "nor-male-y." They were very creditable.

Phi Beta Kappa Oration

The University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa begins a new plan this spring when it has a Phi Beta Kappa oration and a formal announcement of the new members. This has been impossible until now because of the necessity of waiting until the final grades were obtained on the candidates in June. Under the present plan the spring quarter is omitted and the selection is possible after the winter quarter examinations. This initiation ceremony will be distinguished this year by the presence of Oscar M. Voorhees, national secretary of the Phi Beta Kappa society. Mr. Voorhees will deliver the oration at 8:00 P. M. May 1st. After his address public announcement of initiates will be made.

What the Blanket Fee Does

Our debating team lost to Washington and Lee and defeated Johns Hopkins. This, the fourth annual clash of this triangle, was concerned with cancellation of inter-allied debts. The Tar Heel affirmative team composed of C. A. Peeler and J. W. Deyton lost to Washington and Lee here by two to one. The negative team, George C. Hampton and Victor V. Young, received a unanimous decision over Johns Hopkins in Baltimore. After the Baltimore debate Young and Hampton met and defeated George Washington University on the same query. Not content with this second laurel Young representing the negative and J. Y. Kerr the affirmative on the abolition of capital punishment entered the National Literary Society debate in Washington. In this contest Young defeated the representatives of six other institutions and won the medal and scholarship offered. We have just been defeated by Kentucky in the Southern Oratorical contest. George Hampton has been selected to compete in the Peace Oratorical. Then we will meet the University of Kentucky in debate at Lexington. We have certainly had a full season and a fairly victorious one so far. All this unprecedented interest and activity is the result of the blanket fee.

Emilie Rose Knox

Last night, Friday, April 20, the campus had its annual pleasure of being serenaded from the steps of Memorial Hall by Miss Emilie Rose Knox. Miss Knox has not only won high honors in the musical world but a permanent place in the heart of Carolina. After her concerts the boys gather around the entrance and cheer until they get some more music. It makes quite an attractive scene to see the hundreds of boys standing in silence as they drink in the tones of the violin. The atmosphere of spring in Chapel Hill is very favorable to such a tableaux of youth and feeling.

Lear Loan Fund Established

New re-enforcements have come to the rescue of the self-help students in engineering. The schedule of these students has about made it impossible for them to work in the dining hall. Professor J. E. Lear bid for the wiring contract on new buildings last year. His figures were the lowest and the contract was awarded to him. Using student help he finished the job and cleared $5,000. This amount has been set aside as the Lear Loan Fund for engineering students.

Dinner Hour to Pass

The faculty has under discussion a new schedule of classes which would eliminate the fixed dinner hour. Classes would run from 8:30 to 5:00 without stop. Under this schedule the classes would be so distributed as to make class-rooms and laboratories in continuous use. This economy through shifts would also extend to the University's facilities for recreation and exercise. But do you remember the strenuous efforts you made to keep from having an afternoon class?—F. F. B., '16, April 21, 1923.

PHILADELPHIA ALUMNI MEET

The marvelous expansion of the University of North Carolina, not only physically in the way of the going up of new buildings upon the campus in every direction, but also in the progress made in putting the University in the front ranks of modern education so that it stands shoulder to shoulder with Harvard, Yale and Princeton in scholarship, was described to the Philadelphia alumni of the University in a brilliant address by Daniel L. Grant, alumni secretary. Mr. Grant met about fifty of the University alumni at a dinner held in the City Club in Philadelphia at 6:30 on April 15.

James Lee Love, of Gaston, formerly a member of the faculty of Harvard University, presided over the dinner and gave witty reminiscences of the older days of the University under the presidency of Dr. Kemp P. Battle, the days which produced McIver, Alderman and Ayeock; Howard A. Banks, associate editor of the Sunday School Times, spoke briefly of the dawn of the new era of the University under President George T. Winston; and after Mr. Grant's illuminating address, Professor Edwin M. Wilson, headmaster of the Haverford School for Boys, opened a question box which brought out much additional information about our great school of the South at Chapel Hill.

A constitution was adopted and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: James Lee Love, president; Howard A. Banks, first vice-president; Professor Edwin M. Wilson, second vice-president; Dr. Blackwell Sawyer, secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee chosen consists of the four officers of the association and Dr. John Harvey of the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. T. Graham Miller of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School; Dr. Charles R. Turner, dean of the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania; George V. Strong, a prominent Philadelphia attorney; and S. M. Schenck, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The following were present at the dinner: Judge S. E. Shull of Pennsylvania Circuit Court; Dr. Joshua Sherman of Lancaster, Pa., Fred S. Wetzel, I. V. Giles, E. V. Cordon and Robert Deitz, of Philadelphia; Drs. J. L. Poston and R. A. Ross, Episcopal Hospital; Drs. F. R. Robbins, Graham Ramsey and J. C. Tayloe, Pennsylvania Hospital; Dr. F. M. Clarke, Presbyterian Hospital; Drs. E. W. Clark and E. R. Saleeby, Cooper Hospital (Camden); Dr. H. S. Clark, Methodist Hospital; Dr. John Harvey, University Hospital; S. M. Crisp, T. D. Elliott, G. F. Parker, R. C. Smith, S. M. Schenck, Josh Tayloe, C. R. Toy, L. M. Fowler, N. A. Fox, T. E. Jones, E. L. Kellum, T. B. Mitchell, G. D. Morris, F. M. Patterson, W. C. Coley, B. C. West, Oscar Goodwin, W. A. Rourk, Jr., W. V. Costner, H. M. Riggins, L. A. Wilson, John Frazier.

STROUD JORDAN A MANUFACTURING CHEMIST

Dr. Stroud Jordan, of the class of 1909, is now connected with the Heide Manufacturing Company, one of the principal manufacturing confectioners of this country. In his capacity of chemist for the company, Dr. Jordan is attempting to take much of the empiricism from candy manufacture and to place the art upon a scientific basis. Such effort is sure to produce positive and permanent results where indifferent and temporary success has attended the efforts of the candy maker. The results which have been attained are now being given to the public in a series of articles in The Candy Manufacturer. The first of these articles, entitled The Value of Decolorizing Carbons to the Candy Manufacturer, appeared in the November issue of 1922. Up to the present the other published articles are Some Causes of Colors in Sugar Products and their Prevention; Color Comparison and Determination; Commercial Colors—their Uses and Abuses; and Standardization of Colors for Confectioners' Use. In view of the recognized psychological value of color in the sale of candy, this feature has occupied much attention from the chemist and the manufacturers' salesman. The titles of articles yet to appear are The Manufacture of Invert Sugar on an Ordinary Factory Scale; Air Holes in Confectionery and their Role in the Fermentation of Centers and Creams; What is a Thermometer, Why and How to Use It; and Inversion of Sugar in Process and the Prevention of this Side Reaction. The variety of the topics of these articles is sufficient evidence of the wide range of problems which present themselves to such an industry.

H. D. Meyer, of the School of Public Welfare, is the author of Extension Bulletin Vol. II, No. 10 entitled The Commencement Program. The publication, which contains information concerning all phases of commencement programs, was prepared at the suggestion of county superintendents of public instruction and rural school supervisors, and is intended to get the school commencement out of the rut in which it has been in recent years.

Unorganized Associations

The following places which have a sufficiently large number of alumni to do effective work do not have organized associations: Alamance, Ashe, Bladen, Burke, Cartare, Cherokee, Columbia, S. C., Columbus, Dallas, Texas, Franklin, Gates, Greenville, S. C., Halifax (South), Hertford, Jones, Louisiana, Maryland, Norfolk, Va., Oklahoma, Onslow, Person, Pittsburgh, Pa., Randolph, Spartanburg, S. C., Swain, Transylvania, Warren.

Class Organizations

The class officers are not listed here. The Secretary for each class that has one is listed at the top of the class notes in THE REVIEW. There is no record here of the permanent class presidents; in fact, many of the classes have no permanent officers. For these, men are now being secured to serve under a special appointment until the class holds its next reunion. A complete directory of all class officers will be printed later.

Model Local Association Constitution

The following specimen plan of organization for local alumni associations seems to be good to begin with. Several groups recently forming associations have followed this suggestion very closely, and found it satisfactory.

We, the undersigned, all being graduates or former students of the University of North Carolina, have associated ourselves under the following constitution for the purposes herein stated.

I. NAME

The name of this organization shall be the.....Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina.

II. OBJECT

This association is formed to promote, through co-operation with the General Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina, (a) a closer fellowship among the alumni and students of the University, (b) the advancement of the interests of the University, and (c) the promotion of literary and scientific pursuits and matters kindred thereto.

III. MEMBERSHIP

Membership in this association shall be of two classes: (a) Active, (b) Honorary. All graduates and former students of the University of North Carolina residing at.....shall be active members of this association. Former officers, faculty members, trustees, and those otherwise officially connected with the University shall be entitled to honorary membership; and others as this association may invite.

2. A vice-president who shall, in the absence of the president, act as presiding officer, and perform all other duties of that office.

3. A secretary-treasurer who shall perform the duties of the secretary's office, and shall also be charged with the duties of notifying the General Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina (at Chapel Hill) of changes of addresses, of deaths and marriages among the alumni of the University in this vicinity, of public honors bestowed upon them, and such other information as should be a matter of record in the office of the General Association. He shall also collect the annual dues for the local and General Association and keep the accounts of the.....Association. He shall also be a member of the Executive Committee.

4. An executive committee of five members. The Executive Committee shall be composed of the officers named above and two additional ones to be appointed by the Chair. The President of the Association shall be Chairman of the Executive Committee. It shall be trusted with the general management of the association. It shall have the power to call meetings from time to time, appoint special committees, and act upon the reports submitted by such committees, and it shall be its duty to receive suggestions from members and take action upon them.

V. TERM OF OFFICE

The length of the term of the officers and members of the Executive Committee shall be one year, or until their successors are designated.

VIII. AMENDMENTS

Amendments, abrogations, or further provisions to this pact may be made at any regular meeting of the.....by a two-thirds vote.

NEW EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The proposed church for the parish of the Chapel of the Cross is designed by Hobart B. Upjohn, architect, first as a typical village church and second as a type of Perpendicular Gothic, a style prevalent among the protestant Episcopal churches of the last decade. The building is intended to be of stone to match in color and texture the present church, which will become the chapel, thus retaining in concrete form the memories and traditions of the parish. Even a casual examination of the picture will show how successful the architect has been in creating an ecclesiastical group, and the use of the spire on the dominant tower brings the whole mass into an harmonious composition.

The tentative plans of the building show a seating capacity of about 450, a choir ample for 36 singers, and the general arrangement of the church proper in line with the age-old traditions and canons of the church. Ample sacristy and robing rooms are provided, as well as two routes for the processional and recessional of the choir.

The contemplated additions to the parish house comprise two stories of class rooms for the Sunday school, auditorium, church offices, all in the style of the main building.

The old church, parish house, new church, and cloister form a close, in the center of which a memorial is proposed for those "who went forth to battle and returned not" as well as for the blessed dead of the parish.

BASEBALL RESULTS AND PROSPECTS

Naturally, when the baseball season for 1923 opened, Carolina students and followers began speculation as to the chance of producing another team like the one of 1922 which played 21 games, lost two of them and won 19. It was evident from the start that Coach Bill Fetzer had excellent material with which to work toward that end, but it was also obvious that the team would not be as brilliant as that of last year, at least not during its first games.

From the 1922 Southern Championship nine Carolina had lost her two most brilliant pitchers, Llewellyn and Wilson, with only Bryson left among the veterans. The pitching staff presented the first and greatest problem and the Carolina coach began at once to work with Bryson and his new men. John Coffey and Allen Moore had seen some varsity innings, but not many, and the rest of the twirlers came up from last year's freshmen. Frank Coxe, former Yale pitching ace, was added to the squad, but his old strength has not yet shown itself with the Carolina team. Among these new pitchers Bill Ferebee is giving great promise, Coltrane may develop and Finch has possibilities.

Captain Roy Morris is back at his old post behind the bat, and through the Guilford game he had hit two home runs; the first led to a victory over N. C. State and the second prevented a defeat at the hands of Guilford College. Allan McGee, a varsity letter man, is also back for the position and is substituting. Simm Wrenn, former Davidson star, Homer Starling, from the 1922 freshman team, and Merle Bonner, who made his letter in the outfield last year, are also all good catchers and there will be no trouble behind the plate this year.

In the infield Coach Fetzer lost only one man, Fred Morris, for two years the best third baseman in the State. Shirley is back at his old place at first and in as good form as ever; Joe McLean, veteran of three years standing at second, has been playing his position again in spite of his medical studies, which make it hard for him to get time for practice. Morris McDonald is playing his third year at short.

Coach Fetzer began to work on his recruits to find a third baseman. Fuquay, Carmichael, Starling, Griffin and Bonner were thought of, but none seemed to fill the bill. At last he tried "Touchdown" Jones, who played first for the freshmen last year, and Jones at the time of this writing has played in all the games through the Guilford contest.

In the outfield Sweetman and Bonner were the only regulars. Bonner caught the first three games because of Morris' sore arm, but he is now back in left field and is making a good record. Sweetman is a clever fielder, but his hitting has fallen very low. For the third place, in right, there was a wealth of material, mostly in bulk, to work from, and Griffin, Gibson, Carmichael, Fuquay and Coffey have all been used with still no decision reached as to what man shall hold the place as a regular.

The Season

At the time of this writing the team has played seven games, won three, lost three and tied one. The season opened with the Navy at Wilson and early-season form was clearly in evidence. The middies won the game 5 to 4 in spite of the superb twirling of Herman Bryson who held his opponents to 5 hits. Tar Heel errors lost the affair, Joe McLean, who had practiced for only two days, being responsible for two of them.

The next game was played with Maryland on the following day, March 31, and this time Carolina won by a score of 12 to 6. Coffey, Coltrane and Ferebee were used on the mound and Ferebee showed up well in his first varsity game. He was credited with the win.

The Easter Monday game with Davidson was played at Gastonia, Casey Morris' home town, and again Carolina was victor, the score being 12 to 5. Bryson pitched most of the game but Coach Fetzer again tried Ferebee for three innings and the youngster looked good for the second time.

The Lynchburg College game at Chapel Hill on April 16 resulted in a defeat. Coach Fetzer used it as a pitching and batting practice, and, as the students termed it, "Lynchburg just out-practiced us." The score was 5 to 4.

The first important inter-state game played at home came with Trinity on April 18 and the hard-hitting Methodist team won the victory, 4 to 2. Bryson started on the mound for Carolina and was touched for 5 hits and 4 runs during the first and before anyone was out in the second inning. Bill Ferebee then won the hearts of Carolina students by going in, retiring the side with two men on base and allowing no more runs for the contest. The Carolina team played well in the field but could not hit Dempster, the Trinity southpaw, to any run-making degree except for the two runs secured.

With this showing sport writers were predicting championship honors for any other team except for the Tar Heels until Carolina met the undefeated N. C. State team in Raleigh on April 21. Herman Bryson pitched good ball, Casey Morris hit a home-run, and Carolina won. Tar Heel stock went soaring again.

It fell off for the third or fourth time, however, when Guilford held the Fetzer team to a tie on Emerson field on April 24. The playing of the Carolina team was poor, ten errors being marked against the players. It was excused as a team slump after the great trial in Raleigh on the previous Saturday, but still the large number of errors looked bad. The team's Southern trip began on April 30, and everyone is looking for some victories farther down in Dixie.

On this trip Carolina plays Auburn, the University of Alabama, the University of Georgia, Mercer, and Georgia Tech. Southern alumni were clamoring to see the Carolina team and this trip is being substituted for the usual journey north.

After this trip the team meets Wake Forest at Chapel Hill on May 8 and N. C. State four days later. Wake Forest will be played at Wake Forest on May 24 and the second Trinity game will be played in Durham on June 5.

The last two Virginia games have been saved for the close of the season. The second will be in Charlottesville on June 11, and third at Chapel Hill on Alumni Day, June 12.

Carolina Defeats Virginia

For the seventh time in succession the University of North Carolina defeated the University of Virginia in baseball, when the Tar Heels won the famous classic in Greensboro on April 28, by the score of 2 to 1. A crowd, estimated at 6,000, saw the game, which was played after clearing skies had followed a downpour of rain.

The real hero of the game was young Bill Ferebee, a sophomore from New Bern, who was sent to the mound by Coach Fetzer and who remained there for all nine innings, allowing the Virginia team only four hits and one run. Ferebee is only 18 and it was his second varsity tryout of importance. He strengthened his hold on the hearts of Carolina students and Carolina fans and helped to make athletic history by carrying Tar Heel victories into the seventh consecutive win.

In spite of a heavy field only one error was recorded in the contest, and "Monk" McDonald, who starred with his bat and also in his position at short, got credit for it. McDonald scored Carolina's first run in the third inning when he hit a long hard fly to left for two bases, was sacrificed to third by Joe McLean and tagged the plate on Merle Bonner's double to right. McDonald hit safely again in the fifth inning but it did not count toward a score.

In the first half of the sixth inning Virginia made her only run. Ferebee walked Deal, who stole second and scored on Deitrick's single to center.

This tied the count and "Mule" Shirley came up first for Carolina in the second half of the inning. He led off with a double to right center. Captain "Casey" Morris followed with a terrific smash in the same direction, Shirley came home, and the game was won. Morris' drive made the third one of importance hit by the Carolina slugger to result in a win or tie this year. His home run against State College won that game and his hit for four bases tied the Guilford battle that resulted in a tie.

The Greensboro game carried all the old color and fire of former days. Usually it is the second of the Virginia series; this year it came first. Two glorious groups of college girls, one from N. C. C. W. and the other from G. C. W., were on hand in a riot of colors, songs and yells for their brother institution down State. More than a thousand students from Chapel Hill went by special train, regular train, car or bus to see the old rivals meet, and Greensboro extended to them a warm hand of welcome.

The two women's colleges entertained in honor of Carolina and Virginia students after the game and two dances were given down town. It was the third successive victory in Greensboro, the university band was there, and the student body was well organized. The showing of the team, Ferebee's pitching strength, and the support of the students make things look hopeful for more wins.—G. W. LANKFORD, '23.

1903 VARSITY TO PLAY FACULTY

The Varsity baseball outfit of 1903, the "Wonder Team" that won 19 games, lost two, and tied one, is, according to a press note emanating from Marion on April 22, to seek the scalp of the faculty slingers on Emerson Field Monday afternoon of commencement week.

The doughty warriors of yore who are to be in the fray are: Manager George Graham, mill owner, of Charlotte; outfielder John Donnelly, tuberculosis specialist, of Charlotte; outfielder Wade Oldham, chemist, of Birmingham, Alabama; outfielder D. F. Giles, state senator, of Marion; first sacker Earl Holt, teacher of Oak Ridge; second baseman John Cheshire, farmer, of Tarboro; short stop "Bill" Carr, mill owner, of Durham; third baseman Frank Smathers, lawyer, of Miami, Florida, and Hal V. Worth, lumberman, of Raleigh; catcher R. P. Noble, X-ray specialist, of Raleigh; pitchers George Green, lawyer, of Weldon, and Peck Hart, manufacturer, of Tarboro.

A BUILDING BOOM AT CHAPEL HILL

Quite aside from University construction, there is a real building boom in Chapel Hill.

Architects and builders who have checked up on new operations estimate that perhaps $500,000 worth of buildings will go up this spring and summer. Largest of all the projects is the Carolina Inn, but this is only one of many. Stores are rising along the main street, and the construction of residences is in progress in every part of town.

Among the professors who are putting up homes are James F. Royster, Sturgis E. Leavitt, Howard W. Odum and Chester D. Snell. Mr. Royster and Mr. Leavitt are building beside the Durham road, Mr. Odum and Mr. Snell out to the southwest toward Pittsboro. Edwin Greenlaw is soon to start his house on the lot between the MacNiders' and the Hendersons', on the way to Durham. Gustave M. Braune, Frederick H. Koch, and A. C. Howell are to have homes on what was the Tenney farm but is now to be a residential colony. Paul John Weaver has already finished the foundations of his home on the edge of the Park Place settlement.

Cameron MacRae announced the other day that a three-story edifice would soon be erected on the corner of Henderson street across from the post-office. The Tankersley building next to the post-office on the west is almost finished. W. B. Sorrell is to build a two-story store building west of the banks and drug stores.

S. J. Brockwell is planning a new home on Henderson street, a block below the post-office, and Collier Cobb is to add a unit to Cobb Terrace for the occupancy of H. R. Totten. D. D. Carroll and W. F. Prouty are making ready to break up into lots their land on the Pittsboro road; Mr. Prouty and perhaps Mr. Carroll will themselves build there. Other professors who, it is said, may build this summer are J. F. Dashiell, J. E. Lear, and F. F. Bradshaw.

The Baptist church, on Columbia street near Franklin, is almost ready for its opening. The Episcopalians are assured of funds for their new church next to the present Chapel of the Cross. The Methodists are to launch this summer a campaign for money for their new church, which is to stand where the old Seaton Barbee house now is.

Dr. J. W. Turrentine, Ph.B. 1901, M.S. 1902, chemist in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, gave an illustrated lecture on Algae before the Botanical Society of Pennsylvania at the University of Pennsylvania, December 16, 1922.

THE UNIVERSITY IN PRINT

The January number of The North Carolina Law Review, rendered three months late by unanticipated editorial difficulties, made its appearance Wednesday, April 11. The April issue will appear the first week in May, and the June issue about commencement time. The June number will be devoted to a review of the public laws enacted by the General Assembly of 1923.

The leading article in the current number is a discussion of the economic and legal aspects of the controversy between the state banks of North Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, and Oregon, and the Federal Reserve System over The Par Clearance of Checks. It is contributed by Professor C. T. Murchison, of the School of Commerce of the University. Dean L. P. McGehee, of the School of Law, has an article on an important aspect of real property law, Estoppel and Rebutter in North Carolina. Professor Lyman P. Wilson, of the College of Law of Cornell University, is the author of an article entitled Limitations on the Attractive Nuisance Doctrine, in which an early decision of Judge H. G. Connor, then a member of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, and a recent decision of Justice Holmes of the Supreme Court of the United States, form the basis for what the author regards as the solution of the problem. Professor M. T. Van Hecke, the editor-in-charge of the Review, contributes an article on Legislative Power in North Carolina.

Communications received from North Carolina judges and lawyers, and from law teachers in other states, indicate that the January issue is generally regarded as the best number of the North Carolina Law Review yet produced. Especially notable was the recognition given to the leading article on Par Clearance of Checks, by Professor C. T. Murchison, when the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond purchased thirteen hundred reprints of the article for distribution among the banks of North and South Carolina. This is the third time an outside agency has caused an article appearing originally in the North Carolina Law Review to be reprinted in full. Dean L. P. McGehee's discussion of Wife's Separate Action for Personal Injury to Husband, in the June number, was reprinted in the August American Law Review, published in St. Louis, and Mr. W. F. Dodd's article on Statute Law and the Law School, in the June number, was reprinted in the November American Law School Review, published in St. Paul. In addition, the editors have been gratified to see various articles and editorial notes cited as authority for positions taken by law writers in other law reviews.

The special features of the April number, which will appear late in May, will be two articles by Professors W. J. Matherly and Edmund Brown, Jr., both of the School of Commerce of the University of North Carolina, on Taxation of Shares of Stock in North Carolina Corporations, and Cooperative Marketing in North Carolina, respectively. The June number will be devoted exclusively to a review of the public laws enacted by the North Carolina General Assembly of 1923.

Charles Phillips Russell, '04, known in American journalistic circles as Phillips Russell, has been at 32 Marlborough Hill, London, N. W. 8, where he has been engaged in literary and journalistic work.

In recent years Mr. Russell has been a frequent contributor to American and European magazines, some of his articles being as follows: Roads of Doubt, and American Literature in France, in the Freeman; The Best Epigrammist since Oscar Wilde, in Shadowland; The Troubadour, a short story in Smart Set; The Chimney, a short story, in McClure's; Journée de Nègre, a translation in the Paris Humanité of a short story. Poems by Mr. Russell have also appeared in Smart Set, London Funfare, and London New Age.

Two recent publications in the Bulletin series of the University Extension Division are Town Studies, by Harold D. Meyer, of the School of Public Welfare, and The Enforcement of Railroad Labor Board Decisions, by E. Ralph Rankin, '13, Associate Director of Extension. Town Studies, as the title seemingly implies, is arranged for study by members of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the State League of Women Voters, and the State Parent-Teacher Associations. The second Bulletin is the handbook of the High School Debating Union for 1923.

Common Forest Trees of North Carolina: How to Know Them, is the title of a 76-page booklet edited by J. S. Holmes, '90, State Forester of North Carolina and issued by the North Carolina Geological and Economic Survey. The booklet describes the trees most usually seen in North Carolina forests, is well illustrated, and serves splendidly as an aid in the identification of trees.

According to the University Catalogue, a 464-page booklet which has recently come from the press, the faculty of the University includes 57 full professors, 43 associate and assistant professors, 34 instructors, 20 teaching fellows, and 28 student assistants—a total of 182 persons engaged in some way in giving instruction.

HIGH SCHOOL WEEK AT THE UNIVERSITY

Chapel Hill was the mecca on April 12 and 13 for six hundred visitors from the high schools of North Carolina. The visitors included debaters, athletes and school officials who had come, many of them from remote sections of the State, for the eleventh annual final contest of the High School Debating Union, the eleventh annual inter-scholastic track meet, and the eighth annual inter-scholastic tennis tournament. All of these events made up what has become known in late years as High School Week at the University.

Sixty high schools sent their debating teams numbering 240 speakers to the University to compete in the final contest of the High School Debating Union for the Aycock Memorial Cup. These schools had won both debates in the State-wide triangular debating contest held in 250 communities on March 30, on the query: Resolved, That Congress should provide for the enforcement of decisions of the Railroad Labor Board.

A first general meeting of the debate delegations was held in Gerrard Hall at 2:00 P. M. on Thursday, April 12. Prof. N. W. Walker, chairman of the central committee on the debate, presided over the meeting. At this meeting the drawing for sections and for pairs in the first preliminary was held. The first preliminary in fourteen sections was held Thursday evening. From each section one affirmative team and one negative team were chosen for the second preliminary.

The schools whose teams made the second preliminary on the affirmative side of the query were: Guilford, Wilson, Marshville, Glade Valley, Stonewall, Durham, Statesville, Southern Industrial Institute, Mills River, Monroe, and St. Pauls.

The schools whose teams made the second preliminary on the negative side of the query were: Beaufort, Farm School, Stovall, Durham, Elm City, Sunbury, Glen Alpine, Graham, Elizabeth City, Middleburg, Monroe, Guilford, Williamston and Elon College.

The Final Debate

To Misses Ellen Mellick and Mary Dozier, speakers on the negative representing the Elizabeth City high school, belongs the honor of winning for their school the Aycock Memorial Cup. In the final debate with Anderson Boswell and William Anderson, speakers on the affirmative representing the Wilson high school, the Elizabeth City young ladies won the award by a three to two vote of the judges.

The final debate was held in Memorial Hall on Friday evening, April 13. In spite of the rain which had fallen steadily during the day, a huge crowd was present to hear the final debate. The debate itself was spirited and ranked high among all the debates which have yet been held for the Aycock Memorial Cup.

President H. W. Chase presided over the final debate. D. B. Teague, of Sanford, a member of the class of 1910, presented the Aycock Memorial Cup in the name of the former Carolina debaters, who had donated the trophy. Prof. M. C. S. Noble presented the cups and medals to the winners in the inter-scholastic track meet. The judges of the final debate were Professors H. H. Williams, L. P. McGehee, H. M. Wagstaff, L. R. Wilson, and W. S. Bernard. A reception in the Gymnasium immediately after the debate brought to a conclusion the activities of High School Week.

Quincy Sharpe Mills, North Carolinian

After rising from obscurity to high success in ten years, this brilliant young editorial writer of The Evening Sun, of New York, was killed in an attack on the German lines in July of 1918.

Now a rarely appealing memoir of him has been brought out by Putnam's. It tells of Mills' boyhood, his college days in Chapel Hill, his struggles in New York, and finally his experiences in the Army. The volume contains letters that give an unusually vivid picture of the war.

No North Carolinian—especially no alumnus of the University, which Mills loved so deeply—should be without this book.
